18,000 Acres of Natural Gas
Discovered Beneath
America's Second Largest Airport

And only one company can drill for it

But the news is catching on fast...

Standard & Poor's, the world's foremost investment research service, has rated this company a "Strong Buy". (1)

Investment powerhouse JP Morgan is recommending that investors "overweight" the company in their portfolios. (2)

And Jim Cramer of CNBC is advising investors that NOW is the time to start snatching up shares. (3)

Dear Fortunate Investor,

A stunning announcement was made in the national press – and hardly anyone noticed.

America's second largest airport – covering 18,000 acres (29.8 square miles) – a ground area larger than the island of Manhattan – awarded exclusive drilling rights to an American exploration and production (E&P) company, because ...

Beneath its 7 runways and beyond lies an estimated ...
470 billion cubic feet (bcf) of natural gas reserves

This huge find will effectively make this E&P company the world's third-largest natural gas reserve holder behind Exxon Mobil and ConocoPhillips – and the largest independent producer of natural gas in the U.S. with a total natural gas reserve of approximately 22.1 trillion cubic feet (tcf). (4)(8)

Shrewd investors though are asking how much will it cost this E&P company to develop these reserves and bring the natural gas to market.

Well, I dug deep and found the answer: an incredibly low $1.98 per thousand cubic feet (mcf). (5) And that's a stunning piece of news for swift acting investors...

Because as long as natural gas trades above $1.98 per mcf – and it's currently trading at 3X that price – this company is going to be swimming in gas, money – and profits!

To say that this find will prove to be a bonanza for shareholders of this E&P company, is like saying the island of Manhattan is just an island.

And speaking of Manhattan ... this deal actually reminds me of the purchase of Manhattan from the Indians by Dutch settlers. Because, for an equally small investment – a mere $24 worth of blankets and beads – the Dutch concluded a trade that is now valued at untold billions!

And yet this airport deal is just one of a string of brilliant coups this company of top-level managers has recently pulled off.

In fact, Fortune Magazine has just placed this masterfully-run company on its list of 2006's fastest growing companies. (6)

"...The company is a core energy holding for investors..."
-- TheStreet.com (7)

It currently owns nearly 32,700 oil & natural gas wells, and has built what is widely believed to be one of the industry's largest inventories of onshore leaseholds in the U.S. – 22.6 million acres.

All told ... the company has secured an estimated 24,000 natural gas drilling locations nationwide, representing an approximate 10-year inventory of drilling projects.

Better still...

For the past 7 years its stock price performance has been #1 in the industry – up a stunning 3,400% (8)

And that's because...

- It's more than tripled its gas production – mostly through the drill bit – not through expensive acquisitions.
- It owns and operates all its own drilling rigs – protecting it from ever-rising fees charged by outside service vendors and contractors.
- It's the industry-leader in initial horizontal well production – which will clearly help it get to all that gas beneath those 7 runways.
- It's the most active driller of new wells in the U.S – and so far, in 2006, its drilling success rate is a staggering 97%
- It drills more deep onshore wells than anyone in the industry – so hurricanes in the gulf be damned; its production will not be interrupted by cataclysmic weather.
- And, since it's a lot easier to drill on land than it is to drill in the ocean – it doesn't incur expensive gas-to-liquid conversion costs associated with bringing the gas to market from offshore well sites.
- And since its interested only in U.S. based drilling opportunities – there's no need to worry about foreign nationalization or expropriation of assets (as has most recently occurred in Bolivia.)
- It's enjoyed 20 consecutive quarters of organic production growth versus the industry's multi-year decline.
- And while the rest of the field can't find enough new gas reserves to drill for – this company has replaced this year's production of 279 bcf with 860 bcf of reserves, for a total reserve replacement rate of 308%! (8)

“...I definitely believe this company merits real consideration at today's prices...”
-- The Motley Fool (9)

Ironically, I had strongly recommended this company to members of my trading and investment advisory InsiderMoves long before this company's profit potential hit the news wires – and well before the airport deal was even announced!

It was on May 15th of this year, to be exact, that I first alerted my members via email to buy up shares of this company – all thanks to one “special clue” about this company that got my attention immediately, and prompted me to investigate it further.

And that “clue” is what I look for in each and every company, bar none, that I recommend to my members – without which I won't even bother to give a company a second thought.

That's how confident I am in this “clue's” predictive ability to provide my members with outsized gains. And I'll tell you exactly what that “clue” is shortly.

Yet, by no means should you think it's too late for you to take advantage of the tremendous profit potential of this amazing E&P company, even though it's already in many of my members portfolios.

Indeed, you can still pocket gains as high as $240,000 if not higher, beginning as soon as next month! And I'll tell you why.

Better yet, I'll send you a detailed white paper that I wrote about this company – and I'll send it to you FREE.

In it, you'll learn just how attractive this company truly is for investors like yourself.

Would you be surprised, if I told you that...

- In 2005, the total return to common shareholders reached 94% – for a compound total return of 2,400%, for the 13 years since the company's IPO in 1993 – which equals a compound stock price increase of 28% per year.

In other words: Had you invested just $10,000 in this company in 1993, you'd be sitting on $240,000 today!

- Revenues in 2005 rose 72% from $2.7 billion to $4.7 billion.
- Operating cash flow grew 73% from $1.4 billion to $2.4 billion.
- Net income per fully diluted common share increased 64% from $1.53 to $2.51.
- And its assets have an estimated value of nearly $2 billion – which, when using 2005 year-end oil and natural gas price assumptions, provides shareholders with a net asset value (NAV) of approximately $60 per fully diluted share – that's more than 2x the price at which this company's shares currently trade for – making this company an absolutely screaming bargain! (8)

You will become rich, and if you're already rich ... you will become even richer, because...

"You always make your money when you buy."

It's an old and often quoted investment maxim. Simply put, if you buy at the right price – a low price – and then sell later, at a higher price ... you'll make money! Nothing could be simpler or more logical.

And yet, as crazy as it sounds ... many small investors are now selling this E&P company rather than buying more of it!

Why?

Because gas and oil prices have been tumbling of late. And now many believe that the painful and torturous ride to ever-higher prices at the gas pump has ended.

Indeed, many believe that we'll soon see oil drop to $50 a barrel, or below, down from its recent high of almost $80 a barrel.

And, because natural gas prices recently hit a 4-year low, trading well below $5.00 per thousand cubic feet (mcf), down from its post-Katrina high, of almost $18 mcf – many see this as further proof that the energy crisis is finally over.

So, what are these investors doing – they're unloading their shares– causing this company's share price to fall.

Can you see the opportunity that awaits you?

Malcolm Brindad, a planner for Royal Dutch/Shell is quoted in the Economist as saying, "Gas will be the fuel of choice for at least the first half of this century ... get ready for a $100 billion investment boom, the prelude to the "century of natural gas." (14)

Look, I'm just as thrilled as the next person about lower prices at the pump. I'm no longer cringing every time the needle on my car's gas gage approaches that big ominous "E".

Yet, don't you think most "investors" have uncorked the champagne a tad too early – like, 20 years too early?

Deep down ... with all you and I know about what's going on in this country and the world ... do you really, really believe the "energy crisis" is over?

Well, me neither.

I don't want to get political here, and I'm sure you've heard this before ... but as long as we're dependent on foreign suppliers (mostly unstable and predatory dictatorships) for our energy needs – and we will be for a long time to come – oil and gas prices will again resume their rise to unimaginable heights.

Sure, maybe not tomorrow or next week ... but you can bet your bottom dollar that our current collective sigh of relief at the gas pump, and over our electric and gas bill, will – without warning – come to an abrupt and rude end.

You know it. I know it.

But the market doesn't ...

The market can't see any further than the closing bell!

The investment markets are governed by neither reason nor sanity.

They look no farther out than a few days to a few months. They're near-sighted and spot-news driven.

Blind emotions – fear or greed – are what fuel them, and blind momentum steers them ... until they finally run their course, and are exhausted and drained. Then, they pause, until a spark re-ignites them ... and they begin their run, all over again.

Understand this phenomenon, and use it to your advantage...

Here's why YOU can make big money with this company...

Aside from this company's great fundamentals, and proven management expertise – the fact that gas prices are so low right now – makes now the best time in a very long time to load up on shares of this company.

They're extremely undervalued!

Had you bought shares of this company when it first came on the market 13 years ago, before the energy crunch, $10,000 dollars invested in it would have made you $240,000 by today – for a whopping return of 2,400%.

Well, now ... history is about to repeat itself on an even bigger scale...

Because right now everybody's concentrating on how low gas prices will fall, not on how high they will rise again.

Invest in this company today – and I predict that in just 3 weeks or less you could start seeing gains that might eventually reach 2,400% again! – because supplies will inevitably be drawn down...

Winter is here!

Last year we had a very warm winter, which served to limit natural gas heating demand, and quickly brought prices down from elevated levels reached after Hurricane Katrina.

But this year, the venerable Old Farmers Almanac is predicting a harsh U.S. winter.

"...Winter temperatures this year will be as much as 8 degrees F below its 30-year average... our winter predictions are pointing towards widespread cold from coast to coast, especially for the western sections of the country...we do expect this to be the coldest winter we've seen for quite a few years...and nearly 40 degrees colder than last winter for Montana, the Dakotas and parts of Wyoming. For the Gulf Coast up through New England, unseasonably cold, or "shivery," conditions are expected. Snow, and lots of it, is also forecast for the nation's midsection, parts of New England, and the mountains of the Pacific Northwest." (10)

But the market is all about emotions and expectations.

And current natural gas prices are reflecting the expectation that winter temperatures will be moderate. So, in other words, there's no downside to this company's share price – warm temperatures are already priced in.

But if the market is wrong and the Old Farmer's Almanac is right ... we could see a big boost in gas prices and a sharp rise in this company's share price – in a very short period of time.

Energy economist Mary Novak of Cambridge, Mass.-based Global Insight Inc. said natural gas prices should rise from recent lows of about $5 tcf to $8 or $9 by the end of the year, and could hit double-digits again if North America experiences a cold winter.

"There just isn't enough productive capacity in North America to hold the price lower than that – heating oil remains more expensive than natural gas, which should create additional demand for gas this winter,” Mrs. Novak said, in a phone interview. (12)

The U.S. Government Agrees...

The U.S. Energy Information Administration confirms that the market has been lulled into complacency regarding the future of natural gas prices.

It states on its website that, “the warmer-than-normal weather this past winter left natural gas inventories at high levels at the start of the non-heating, or refill season, which runs from April through October.” (15)

So if it indeed turns out to be a colder-than-normal fall and winter, U.S. natural gas inventories will quickly contract.

Business Week concurs...

“Falling oil prices are not uncommon at this time of year, when gasoline consumption traditionally tapers off and heating oil demand has yet to ramp up. The drop has been magnified by a perception among traders that threats to supplies -- ranging from Atlantic hurricanes to Middle East politics -- have eased.”(16)

And yet, even if gas prices do stay low – even for a year – this company has hedged the price of its gas reserves – guaranteeing that come what may this company will be paid more than double what gas is currently trading for.

TheStreet.com reports...

“The company has hedged a good portion of its production over the next three years, locking in prices well above $9 per million BTU...providing good earnings visibility for the next several quarters.”(13)

California will be supporting this company too!

You probably read or heard the news just recently about California passing new emission standards.

In short, America’s most populous state will no longer accept power from coal-generated plants.

And that means natural gas will be in high demand in California, because it’s the only efficient, relatively clean power source that can take up the slack as coal plants go offline. And so, who is likely to benefit? You guessed it. This E&P company!

Allow me to send you my FREE White Paper on this company, which truly stands in the “right place at the most profitable time.”

Indeed, this company belongs in your portfolio – right now! – before gas prices shoot up and the share price of this company skyrockets again!

Of course, you're wondering why I want to help you invest smartly and profitably ... when we hardly know each other.

Well, let me introduce myself...

My name is Maurice Barnfather

For more than 30 years I've been writing about business and the stock market for such leading publications as Forbes, The Times of London and The Economist.

And I've never once been known to hold back an opinion or a recommendation when my research and analysis warrant that my voice be heard.

I've also served as the Director of Corporate Finance, mergers and acquisitions, at a London-based investment bank.

And now, as part of the RightSide Advisors team, I'm the Editor-In-Chief of the widely followed trading and investment advisory InsiderMoves.

Why InsiderMoves ?

For the average investor Wall Street is the Bermuda Triangle – fortunes and investments have been lost there, never to be seen again.

Most investors get their investment “insights” from their broker, or their brokerage's analysts, or from glossy-paged financial magazines or even from TV shows.

Well, I'm telling you right now, most of these “investment advisers” are a bunch of cheap-trick fortune-tellers!

These big-shot stock “analysts” can't predict the future of a stock any better than you can. And you know it!

You've watched them on CNBC, listened to them on talk-radio, read their crystal ball predictions on MarketWatch, in the Wall Street Journal, Fortune, and Investor's Business Daily.

What good did it do you? Over the years, maybe you got lucky once or twice. Big deal.

Listen. Behind your back, off-camera ... these guys, they're laughing at you!

LAUGH BACK – show them the money!

Up to three months before the media reports it to the world, before Wall Street wakes up to the news, before all the money has been made, InsiderMoves can show you where the money is – who's buying what behind closed corporate doors – so you can move in fast and first!

Who wouldn't want an "inside shot" at making a killing on Wall Street?

But "insider trading" is illegal. End of story.

You cannot trade on material, non-public information.

Think Mike Milken, Ivan Boesky, Martha Stewart.

And yet...

What if you're privy to big, REAL BIG, insider transactions – tens of thousands of shares, hundreds of thousands of dollars – moments after these transactions are reported electronically, as required by law, to the SEC – and before most everyone else knows about it?

Wouldn't you agree ... possessing this type of unimpeachable, near secret, high-value, highly-specific information ... would give you, by anybody's estimate, an impressive, unassailable – trading edge?

It almost sounds illegal, doesn't it?

But it's not!

Before the media reports it ... before the thundering herd even gets a whiff of it ... before those hotshot movers and shakers on Wall Street can act and buy ... you can know about these big-time insider transactions – in real-time!

And it's all perfectly, totally and completely legal.

Why? Because once these transactions are reported to the SEC, they're no longer material, non-public information ... are they?

And, I possess proprietary software that links me directly to the SEC's database in real-time – so I get up-to-the-minute feeds.

Finally! The advantage swings to YOU!

No longer will you feed on discarded scraps and leftovers after the "big boys" have had their fill, rubbed their bellies, and pocketed the money.

And yet, I know what you're thinking...

You're thinking you can go to MarketWatch, Yahoo, Edgar-Online or MSN or any other financial information website and get that same information.

And you'd be absolutely right!

But...and this is an extremely BIG but...

What you'll see at those websites are insider transactions that are published and disseminated long, and I mean real long after – sometimes up to three months after – that information is known...and...acted upon.

So what good is it to you then?

There's no edge, no advantage in stale, well-publicized information that's already been wrung dry of every drop of time-sensitive value.

I challenge anyone to refute the following...

As an investor, a trader, a stock market participant ... what you want ... what you need ... in order to score big gains and fast profits with a minimum of risk – is the ability to act quickly and confidently – on completely accurate, specific intelligence that very few other people, if any, possess.

Now you decide...

Do you want to remain in the parking lot of the stock market ... sitting on a beach chair, a blanket over your legs, and a thermos of hot coffee by your side ... waiting your turn for a long-shot chance on making a few dollars off information everyone already owns?

And yet, let me be clear...

You don't want to see just any type of insider buying
– you want the buying to be “QUALIFIED”

By that I mean, in order of preference, you want to see insider buying from the:

1. Corporate Officers, those in the “C” suite – the Chairman, CEO, CFO, CIO, etc.
2. The Board of Directors – the appointed members of the board, who oversee the officers.
3. The Beneficial Shareholders – investors who own more than 10% of all outstanding shares – like Warren Buffet, George Soros, and others.

These are the people who typically know the most about the company's customers, suppliers, competitors (specifically, those competitors who might be preparing an unsolicited takeover bid).

They're also the ones who have direct contact with the company's key employees – the Director of Sales, and the Director of Product Development (those employees who know the most about the company's immediate and future prospects).

And ... you want to see these people buying 100,000's of shares, not a mere thousand or two – and not at below market, non-open market or stock option prices.

You want to see them buying at market prices – and buying repeatedly in clusters.

"This is just the kind of info I need and have not gotten anywhere else...I consider what you have already told me to have helped me a lot and to have been very valuable."

-- D.W., InsiderMoves member-subscriber

Indeed, when all these people are putting a sizable chunk of their own money into their companies at open market prices – there's no surer signal that something “good” is about to happen with a company's stock.

And there's a host of other similar indicators that you want, and I look for, to confirm the validity of the “clue.”

And once I see all these things converging ... that's when I begin my research and analysis.

As I said before, insider buying is the “clue” – not the reason to buy a stock. Solid and extensive fundamental and technical analysis must confirm the stock's anticipated near-term rise before I send out a buy alert to my members.

And here's the proof of that wisdom

In the short three years that we've been publishing our trading advisory, our gains speak for themselves...

Over the past 3 calendar years our cumulative total return is a documented 1,184.9%

In other words, had you been with us for the past 3 calendar years ... InsiderMoves would have handed you, winners and losers included, an average annual total return of 28.21%

"Wow! I've already received a profitable return on my [subscription fee] investment!" -- D.H., InsiderMoves member-subscriber
---

Here's just a few of our winning trades, and how fast the gains came in:

62.38% gain with Activision in just 8 months.

198.89% gain with Parlux Frag in just 10 months.

69.94% gain with Allegiant Banc in just 12 months.

39.40% gain with Niku in just 3 WEEKS.

57.96% gain with Park Place in just 9 months.

47.02% gain with Pozen in just 8 months.

62.79% gain with Active Power in just 4 WEEKS.

36.89% gain with ML Macadamia in just 10 months.

Now ... if these returns haven't impressed you ... if the natural gas E&P company I described to you earlier hasn't impressed you ... then you have no reason to read any further.

But, I don't believe that to be the case. After all, I'm offering you investment recommendations that you can't get anywhere else – real investment insight – proven stock purchase recommendations that can make you rich.

So now...

Only one question remains...

How much? How much is this up-to-the-minute trading advisory – based on SEC-supplied insider transactions and in-depth fundamental research – going to cost you?

You're probably thinking ... $2,000 to $3,000 ... at the very least. Right? Because you already know there are trading systems and advisory services out there that will charge you that much and more ... and yet offer you far less than what you'll receive with InsiderMoves.

"...I'm extremely happy with your newsletter – and my performance!" -- B.G., InsiderMoves member-subscriber

Still ... I'm not going to suggest you pony-up $3,000 or even $2,000.

In fact, you won't spend even $1,500 or $1,000 – even though one successful trade based on one of my stock recommendations could net you 10x or even 20x that – and put a cool $20,000 in you bank account almost overnight.

And yet ... before I shock you with how downright inexpensive, dare I say, cheap, my trading service is compared to the rest of the field...

“5 Stocks Under $10 You Should Buy Right Now for Bigger Profits”

In this report, I highlight 5 stocks, all priced under $10, that warrant immediate attention – because of their near-term “double-digit” gain potential.

Stock #1: This company is a direct competitor with some of America’s most successful theme parks, and was doing extremely well. But then, it fell on hard times due to a variety of “eminently fixable” reasons. So, the Chairman of the Board promptly sacked the top management and brought in a big name top executive from ESPN to put the company back in shape. Now, with early results in, insiders are buying big time – and so should you!

Stock #2: When a high stakes king-maker in Hollywood bought almost $1,000,000 worth of shares in a small information technology (IT) company – I took notice. What I discovered was that this company was founded and is now run by the same genius-programmer who started the whole Internet boom with his revolutionary browser: Netscape. This company’s customers now include Nortel Networks, Time Warner Cable, and the U.S. Department of Energy. You’ll definitely want to buy a piece of this company!

Stock #3: When one of the savviest money managers I know bought over $2,000,000 worth of shares in a small Rocky Mountain oil and gas company – I had to find out why. Things are a bit sketchy right now, but apparently this company is concentrating its exploration efforts – not in its proven stomping grounds in the Western US – but in, of all places, Poland. The company is holding its cards close to its chest right now – but something is definitely going on here.

And then there’s companies #4 and #5 – a gaming company, and a “handheld” entertainment console manufacturer that’s got insiders backing up the truck and loading up on shares.

All this, and more, including the ticker symbols for all five companies, are yours FREE in my Special Report: “5 Stocks Under $10 You Should Buy Right Now for Bigger Profits” – yours to keep, as soon as you become a member of InsiderMoves.
