Dear Fellow Investor,

Guess who said the following:

> "Our excessive dependence on OPEC has already taken a tremendous toll on our economy and people.… It's a cause of the increased inflation and unemployment we now face.
>
> "This intolerable dependence on foreign oil threatens our economic independence and the very security of our nation. The energy crisis is real. It is worldwide. It is a clear and present danger to our nation. These are facts and we simply must face them."

Was it President George W. Bush... John McCain... or Barack Obama?

Well, get out your bell-bottoms. It was President Jimmy Carter, on July 15, 1979.

And yet, some things never change.

Last week Barack Obama announced he wants to impose a windfall profits tax on oil companies to help fight high energy costs for consumers.

> "I'll make oil companies like Exxon pay a tax on their windfall profits, and we'll use the money to help families pay for their skyrocketing energy costs and other bills." – Barack Obama, excerpted from a speech delivered during the Philadelphia primary.

Sounds good, doesn't it? Obama wants to take on Big Oil to help Joe America.

The only problem is we've seen these sorts of taxes before, under Jimmy Carter in the '70s.

And the result was domestic oil production fell by 795 million barrels, imports increased dramatically—and oil prices shot through the roof!

Today, you're paying more than $4 for a gallon of unleaded gas— now imagine what you'll pay if Obama imposes a windfall profits tax...

Obama's Tax Rampage

And if that weren't bad enough, Obama is also proposing to increase the capital-gains tax rate from 15% to as high as 28%.

Plus, he wants to allow the 2001 and 2003 Bush tax cuts to expire in 2010, which will effectively raise taxes on Americans by Tens of Billions of Dollars.

He also wants to do away with the $102,000 FICA payroll tax cap... which means anyone making over $102,000 would pay an additional 7% in taxes on earned income.

> "....I would look at raising the capital gains tax for purposes of fairness. The top 50 hedge fund managers made $29 billion last year--$29 billion for 50 individuals. Those who are able to work the stock market and amass huge fortunes on capital gains are paying a lower tax rate than their secretaries. That's not fair." -- Barack Obama

Again, sounds good, but here's the problem...

Hedge fund managers make enormous salaries because they charge their clients 2% of assets and 20% of profits, not because of long-term capital gains taxes.

And, most hedge funds are short-term traders. Raising the long-term capital gains tax won't affect them in the slightest!

But it will affect you and me—whose retirement income is in 401(k)s and mutual funds, many of which do hold positions for longer than a year.

The Antidote to Obama's Proposed Tax Increases

In your FREE Special Report Graham Summers names a mutual fund that's been closed to new investors for 26 years—and whose manager Warren Buffett personally recommends to his clients.

Warren Buffett once said his ideal holding period is "forever."

Today... because of Obama's willingness to raise the long-term capital gains tax... it's vital for anyone looking to PROTECT AND PRESERVE his or her wealth... to hold investments for the long term, the very long term.

Well, this fund's average stock holding period is nearly a decade (7.5 years to be precise).

Hence, it rarely pays capital gains taxes. Even better, its fees are ridiculously low: just 1% a year.

And better still... it produces massive gains. Just $10,000 invested in this fund in 1970 would now be worth over $2 million today—more than quadrupling the performance of the S&P 500 over the same time period!

And, this mutual fund is now, once again, open to new investors—though for how long is anybody's guess. So don't delay...

Obama's Printing Press Economy: Print Money... Spend Money... Print Money... Spend Money

As soon as Obama takes office he wants to issue a second set of Stimulus Checks to US citizens worth a total of $50 billion. He also wants to set up two funds, placing $10 billion in each of them, to help families facing foreclosure and states that are running deficits.

That's a total of $70 billion in government spending that Obama wants to implement immediately.

Then he wants to:

- Create a $125 million fund to invest in promising technologies.
- Invest $150 billion in alternate fuels and biofuels over the next ten years.
- Create a $60 billion Infrastructure bank to fund transportation infrastructure.
- Invest $250 million a year to create "business incubators" to help start local businesses.

Again, all of this sounds good and noble, but here's the problem...

Where's all these billions of dollars going to come from?

The answer: two places... higher taxes and the money printing presses—and neither are very good answers. But the latter, in particular, will add fuel to an already growing and dangerous problem…

Inflation

Already inflation is everywhere you look.

Oil is hitting record high after record high.

Gold has doubled since the beginning of 2007.

Companies are raising prices to maintain profits.

Pimco's Bill Gross Warns:
In an open letter to Barack Obama, Bill Gross, the bond-fund-manager superstar, and a registered Republican, states that not only does he think Barack Obama will be elected president... but that the nation's budget deficit, now nearly $500 billion, will explode to $1 trillion under his administration.
[End Sidebar]

In the last two months alone we've seen price hikes at Dow Chemicals and tech giant Oracle. Heck, cereal company Kellogg already raised its prices twice this year— the second time by shrinking box sizes while maintaining prices.

Just go to the supermarket... this year alone...

- The price of eggs is up over 28%.
- The price of corn is up over 65%.
- The price of bananas is up over 21%.
- The price of a 2-liter bottle of soda is up over 10% to $1.33.
- The price of a 16-ounce bag of potato chips is up over 10% to $3.89.

And the dollar continues to plummet in value on all international monetary exchanges.

To quote Graham, "The dollar won't buy bubkis anymore."

The American Investor's Antidote to Inflation

Graham recommends immediately exchanging a large portion of your available cash into a historically strong and resilient currency that benefits—actually rises in value—when inflation runs rampant.

Dollars, Euros, Yens and all other currencies collapse under the weight of inflation...

But not this super-currency—it thrives on inflation.

Yet, right now, it's undervalued!

It can be bought for less than half its inflation-adjusted price. In other words, this currency needs to double in price just to reach its fair market value!

And then, as inflation continues its inevitable rise—this currency's value will soar even higher!

In your FREE Special Report Graham Summers names, not one, but two ways for you to easily buy this inflation-benefiting currency today!

Can You Guess what Happens to the Stock Market in a Presidential Election Year...

In the fourth year of a presidential cycle, where you have a lame-duck president, the S&P 500 typically underperforms—10% below its normal long-term average—5.2%, inflation-adjusted.

The first year of a new presidential term is also unpleasant—the S&P typically underperforms by about 3%.

But... if the party in power changes, in this case, from Republican to Democrat, the first year tends to under perform by 8%.

And... in the coming months, when investors actually realize that Obama will most likely win the election—and raise the cap gains tax— something he'll easily accomplish with a Democrat Congress—there'll be a stampede of asset sales, as investors rush to take their profits—the likes of which we haven't seen in over a generation!

To quote Graham Summers:

> "We're plunging head-first into one of the most disastrous, high-inflation bear markets in memory. All the major indexes will crash though support levels like bullets through paper come the fourth quarter if not sooner."

A hedge against the inevitable is, therefore, wise and warranted.

Understand first that from 2002-2007 small cap stocks outperformed large caps as investors sought growth over stability. But that trend has now reversed itself.

Investors are seeking safety above all else—hence the rally in Treasuries, which are handily outperforming the Russell 2000.

And because small-caps stocks are hit hardest during market downturns, they'll have the worst of it when the economy comes completely undone.

And so Graham Summers offers in your FREE Special Report...

An Easy-to-Buy Hedge Against the Small-Cap Stock Implosion

It's an ETF (Exchange Traded Fund) that returns _two times the inverse_ of the Russell 2000: the most popular small-cap stock index.

In other words, if the Russell 2000 falls 10%, this ETF returns 20%. If the Russell 2000 falls 20%, this ETF returns 40%, and so on!

Who Exactly is Graham Summers and Why Should You Take His Advice?

Consider this...

> In November 2007, Graham Summers wrote in the "Inside Strategist"—which was largely ignored at the time—that both Bear Stearns and Lehman Brothers—because they both record billions of dollars on their balance sheets as illiquid "Level 3" assets—were teetering and about to fall...big time!
>
> And, sure enough... it came to pass.
>
> As far back as August 2006, in the "Growth Stock Wire", Graham Summers wrote about the looming sub-prime fiasco and the concomitant drop in consumer spending. "... The sub-prime lending market is hurting... looks to me like the consumer spending spree of the last 15 years is finally coming back to haunt us... let's talk defense," he wrote.
>
> Boy, was he ever right.
>
> Also, in August 2006, in the "Growth Stock Wire", Graham forecast the Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac implosion. "...Both Fannie and Freddie have experienced strong resistance at their 200-day moving averages in the last three months... which indicates a lack of interest from big mutual funds. Put these two stocks on your watch list… I expect to see them both head lower in the coming months. The recent slowdown in mortgage lending has just begun..."

Sure, old news now, but back then... no one believed it could happen.

And, in July of 2006, almost 2 years before it actually happened, Graham predicted the collapse of Countrywide Financial. "...This company is banking on an extremely risky demographic for its revenues, and its falling loan production isn't much to inspire confidence... and neither is its insider trading. Insiders have sold over $100 million worth of stock in 2006... I don't think they're counting on Countrywide's current profitability to last too much longer...."

Truer words were never spoken.

Now, just based on the above predictions alone, it doesn't take a genius to figure out that when Graham Summers has something to say... about the stock market, a particular company or the economy as a whole... he's worth listening to.

After all... he's made quite a few people either rich, or richer, over the years.

Among his ardent followers are a growing number of celebrated and successful businessmen and professionals. (Understandably, they asked that their privacy be respected, and declined to be specifically identified. Yet, who they are and what they do, or have done in the past, is part of the public record.)

They include...

S.... a Ph.D. physicist, who for 20 years led a team of 10 Ph.D. physicists and electrical engineers on projects devoted to nuclear, solid state and theoretical physics for the Naval Research Laboratory. For 17 years he held the Chair of the Physics Department of a major east coast research university before becoming its Dean three years ago.

He credits Graham with a 70% return over two years... just for recommending Marty Whitman's Third Avenue Value Fund in 2004.

P... is currently a venture capitalist. He typically takes a 50+% interest in privately held companies, which he then builds up... and sells. Prior to doing this, he owned a consulting business with annual sales of approximately $50 Million, employed about 200 people. He sold it to a company with a market cap of $1.6 Billion.

His investment portfolio is valued at well over seven figures, and currently has more than $600,000 invested with Graham. "...The fact that he (Graham) actually buys everything he recommends is, to me, very positive. I know few investment advisors (mainstream or otherwise) who put their money where their mouths are."

F... has an MBA from Harvard, was a commercial real estate developer before founding a winery in Northern California. Over the course of 25 years, his wine sales grew from just 327 cases a year... to well over 450,000. He eventually sold his winery for $160 Million—cash!

I'm honestly not allowed to say much more about F... he's rather reclusive and extremely reticent about divulging his investment secrets and experiences other than to say, "I've followed Graham's recommendations for a number of years. He's smart... and I respect his opinions."

We're Giving the Global Stock Monitor To You... for FREE!

Because, quite frankly, you may have never heard of Graham Summers... even though over the past five years he's published well over 1,500 pages of investment analysis and economic and market-related commentary... writing about everything from sugar, to Singaporean real estate, to bonds denominated in the Turkish New Lira.

So... we want to introduce you to Graham—without obligation, without cost, with no strings attached—so maybe in the future, after you realize first-hand the value of his economic and financial market insights—and the value of his occasional FREE recommendations—you'll choose to subscribe to one of his rapid-fire, high-performing trading advisories.
