

105,000 cinema screens throughout the world are about to fall prey to a Morristown, New Jersey Internet Company...

Every Time a Movie, Sporting Event or Rock Concert is Digitally Projected on the “Silver Screen” – Shareholders of this Company Will Collect a Royalty Payment – Guaranteed!

Investors have already seen returns of 360.22% in less than 2 years – with 90% of the gains still to come!

Buy this company now – because beginning next year – digital movies alone are expected to gross well over $2.7 billion.

Dear Favored Investor,

Imagine ... just for a moment ... every time Tom Hanks, Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt, Meryl Streep, Johnny Depp and Tom Cruise makes a movie ... you get a cut of the action.

Every time a movie is directed or produced by Seven Spielberg, Peter Jackson, George Lucas and John Cameron ... every time a movie theater books a digitally recorded performance – a movie, a major league sporting event, a rock concert ... you get a cut of the action.

Well, stop imagining – you can.

I've discovered a NASDAQ traded company that's revolutionizing the way digital media – movies, rock concerts, sporting events – is bought, transmitted and projected on the “Silver Screen.”

Why This Means Big Dollars in Your Pocket...

Have you ever driven your car on a toll road or highway? Of course you have. You toss a couple of quarters in the metal basket or hand the attendant a couple of bucks, hope for change, and on your way you go.

Well, in just two years, this company I'm writing to you about today will own, control or license all the toll booths and digital highways connecting every producer and developer of digital media - to nearly every movie theater, exhibition hall and conference room in the world.

Why this Company is Such a Terrific Investment

Their business model is a classic identify-the-need, satisfy-the-need, and then quickly dominate the industry that's been created.

Bill Gates did it with Microsoft, and the computer software industry has never been the same since. And how many "millionaire shareholders" did Microsoft create?

Michael Dell did it with custom-ordered, assembly-line produced computers. And today Dell is in a league of its own - no other company comes close. And how many "millionaire shareholders" did Dell create?

And now this company is doing it, too.

It's figured out how to shove its long fingers into the pockets of every major (and not-so-major) movie studio, distributor and theater owner in the U.S. and beyond.

And all the movie studios, distributors and theater owners are loving it. Why? Because, they see the money - the big profits - just around the corner.

Let me explain...

All the Movie Studio Heavy-Weights Want to go Digital

In the spring of 2002 seven movie studios - Disney, Universal, MGM, Paramount, Warner Bros., 20th Century Fox and Sony, banded together to form the Digital Cinema Initiative (DCI).

"Hollywood can't wait to go digital."

-- USA Today

See: http://www.usatoday.com/money/media/2005-05-17-digital-cinema-usat_x.htm

Their purpose: To develop, in cooperation with the American Society of Cinematographers (ASC), a common, system-wide standard for digital cinema that can be quickly and easily adopted by all studios, distributors and theaters.

3 Big Reasons for All the Excitement

Reason One: Money. Digital media is cheap!

Rick McCallum, a producer on Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones, said it cost him $16,000 to shoot 220 hours of his movie on digital tape. If he had shot the same amount of hours on traditional analog film (literally a 19th Century technology), it would have cost him $1.8 million.

See: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Digital_cinema#Savings_in_production

"Digital is a very big deal."

-- Dan Fellman, President, Warner Bros.

See: Andy Serwer, FORTUNE editor at large, May 23, 2006: 4:48 PM EDT

Distributors will also save money.

A single analog film print can cost over $1,200. So imagine printing 4000 copies for a worldwide-release of a movie - it could cost a distributor $5 million or more (which doesn't include the cost to ship all those reels of film in those heavy metal cans)!

But with a digital distribution system, whether you show a movie in 1000 theaters or in just one, the cost is about the same.

Digital movies of course are nothing more than big computer files ... and just like computer files they can be sent anywhere through a broadband cable or via satellite.

And so with hundreds of movies distributed every year on average, industry savings, using digital media, could reach $1 Billion!

See: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Digital_cinema#Savings_in_production

Now can you see why the industry is dying to go digital?

"Digital projection is coming, not only to Landmark Theaters but to the larger chains, too."

-- New York Times

See: NY Times, Sunday, December 18, 2005

Movies can open in theaters all over the world on the same day - with hardly any additional cost or effort.

Theater owners will make even more money.

Theaters owners will have more control and increased flexibility over programming.

In fact, they can change their programming as easily as you can rearrange a play list on an iPod.

With the flick of a switch, digital theaters can show super-sized non-movie entertainment on their screens - like pay-per-view live concerts and major sporting events - and fill their houses with enthusiastic cash-waving audiences.

"This will be as profound a change in the movie-making experience as color and sound."
-- Titanic director James Cameron

See: http://www.usatoday.com/money/media/2005-05-17-digital-cinema-usat_x.htm

Just recently, a 90-minute concert by rocker David Bowie was simultaneously beamed by satellite to 22 digital cinemas across Europe.

And a pay-per-view Bon Jovi concert was shown on theater screens the day before the band released its latest CD.

Studios can also distribute digital films with soundtracks in multiple languages to attract even wider audiences. A movie house could schedule a new blockbuster to play in Spanish at 5 p.m., Japanese at 7 p.m. and then go back to English at 9 p.m.

"You'll see a substantial transition to digital by the end of 2006."
-- John Fithian, President, National Association of Theater Owners

See: http://www.usatoday.com/money/media/2005-05-17-digital-cinema-usat_x.htm

And when a movie is successful, theater owners can copy the digital file and feed it to multiple projectors within the movie house.

With celluloid, theaters must estimate in advance how many prints they'll need. Then, they're often caught short when a movie is a surprise hit - and they have to wait for more prints to be delivered.

They can also turn a theater's "dark time", when they're normally empty, into dollars, too. They can program content from museums and performing arts centers - content that their audiences would want to view - but can't normally see on TV.

"Digital will allow not only for instant and dirt-cheap distribution of films but also for targeted distribution of independent films, rock concerts or kids' shows."

-- Fortune Magazine

See: Andy Serwer, FORTUNE editor at large, May 23, 2006: 4:48 PM EDT

For example, through its partnership with Microsoft, the Cineplex chain of theaters hosted a weekday event in which the audience played the Halo 2 video game projected on theater screens.

Theaters will also become more attractive venues for corporate presentations, college lectures and religious services - which will bring in even more dollars.

Reason Two: Protection against Piracy.

When a movie is digitally encrypted, and with only the theater owner or vendor in possession of the releasing key or code, bootleg copies of a film becomes a thing-of-the-past.

The Motion Picture Association of America estimates Hollywood lost $3.5 billion last year to bootleg movies.

See: http://www.usatoday.com/money/media/2005-05-17-digital-cinema-usat_x.htm

And $3.5 billion saved - is $3.5 billion earned!

Reason Three: The audience. They benefit, too. Digitally recorded images are clearer, cleaner and crisper, and remain so even when viewed 1,500 times.

"...A digitally projected digital movie is a shiny marvel..."

-- Entertainment Weekly

See: <http://archives.cnn.com/2002/SHOWBIZ/Movies/04/19/ew.hot.star.wars/>

Celluloid, over time, wears thin, scratches, smudges and tears, and eventually has to be replaced.

And, with digital tape, each movie frame is more evenly lit, from edge to edge. There's no bright spot in the middle as there is with film.

The whole theater experience will be dramatically enhanced, which will increase attendance - which will bring in more dollars!

So How did this Tiny Company Single-Handedly Conquer Hollywood?

Founded in 2000 in Morristown, New Jersey, this visionary software company saw its opportunity and jumped all over it.

"We applaud the successes of this company and acknowledge it as one of the very few to accomplish such a fast growth rate over the past five years."

-- Paul Mlynarski, Partner, Deloitte & Touche LLP

See: <http://biz.yahoo.com/prnews/060814/nym014.html?.v=54>

Now they own the keys to the digital cinema kingdom - the four crucial components necessary to complete the digital cinema revolution:

1. Distribution management software: In its simplest form, this company owns the listing service that enables digital content owners (movie studios, independent producers, etc.) and distributors to buy and sell program content online.

Y-O-Y Revenue Growth - 58%
2-year Revenue Growth - 133%

See: <http://www.accessitx.com/AIXD%202006Annual%20Report.pdf>

For example, a content owner can logon to the company's website and display all their available digital titles for sale or rent.

2. Exhibition management software: Movie theatres, museums, community arts centers and other venues that exhibit programming to large audiences will then logon to the website and view the available content.

Q-O-Q Revenue Growth - 73%
Q-O-Q Cash Increase - 640%

And when an exhibitor finds the content that he'd like to order, the selection screen provides a link that sends a "Memo of Interest" to the distributor.

3. Managed digital delivery: From that point forward the service takes care of transmitting the selected title to the theatre - securely and efficiently.

4. A common platform: The company's proprietary software programs enable the different brands of hardware owned by distributors and exhibitors (projectors, servers and routers, for example) to "talk" to one another - eliminating any and all technical incompatibilities.

The company has also signed formal agreements with various satellite and bandwidth providers, system integrators and hardware vendors (digital projector manufacturers, for example) to host their system, and further spread the revolution.

Okay ... so the company has the means to deliver on the promise.

But ... can the company turn the promise into a money-making, profit-bonanza for its shareholders?

You bet!

This Company is Intent on World Domination

In the summer of 2005, the company announced a major studio-backed plan to deploy 4,000 DCI-compliant digital projection systems throughout the U.S. by the end of 2007 (and it's already way ahead of schedule.)

It is the first and largest deployment of its kind in the world.

"National CineMedia, a joint venture formed last year by Theater owners AMC, CineMark, and Regal, recently hired J.P.

Morgan Chase to help develop a financing plan to convert 13,000 screens to digital cinema.

"J.P. Morgan will try to raise about $1 billion for the effort over the next six months."

-- Los Angeles Times

See: Peter Topolewski, BullMarket.com, Thursday July 13, 9:20 am ET

And, not only will this deployment have a major impact on the company's bottom line in the here and now - it's also expected to be a blueprint for the eventual conversion of all 105,000 cinema screens throughout the world.

"There are two or three serious and significant deployment plans that will come together over the next couple months."

Coming Soon to a Theater Near You

And to prove that all of this is no pipe-dream - and that bags of money will soon start flooding this company's coffers ...

By the end of this year, there will have been a total of 52 digital film releases (31 have already been released, and 21 are slated to be released before year's end.)

Yet, last year, there were only 15 digital releases. That's a year-over-year 247% increase!

And ... 9 of the top 10 domestic films this year have been digital releases. They include, in order of domestic gross (the worldwide box office gross is in parentheses.)

1. Pirates of the Caribbean 2 ($773.5m)
2. Cars ($365.8m)
3. XMen: The Last Stand ($440.9m)
4. The DaVinci Code ($747.3m)
5. Ice Age 2 ($644.8m)
6. Superman Returns ($337m)
7. Over the Hedge ($286m)
8. Mission Impossible 3 ($386m)
9. The Breakup ($163m)

That equals a total 2006 worldwide gross of $4.14 billion - and that includes films that came out recently and are still in theaters - still making money!

So, by my count, this year, digitally released movies grossed a total of $2.74 billion (not including foreign box office receipts), out of the $5.777 billion that's been grossed domestically by all movies.

This means that films released digitally, accounted for 47% of the total domestic box office so far this year.

And Why are These Billions of Dollars Important to You?

You'll love this...

Every time a digital film is shown on a digital projector supplied, owned or financed by this company (as most of them are) ... the company is paid a royalty.

So, every time Angela Jolie smiles at someone sitting in a darkened theater, the company receives a VPF (Virtual Print Fee), which goes directly to the company's bottom line.

Are you seeing the possibilities here...?

And Next Year Promises to be a Movie Blockbuster Bonanza!

In fact, next summer is expected to be the biggest single movie season in history.

Here's what's on tap to be released:

May 4: Spider-Man 3
May 18: Shrek the Third
May 25: Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End
June 8: Ocean's Thirteen
June 15: Fantastic Four and the Silver Surfer
June 22: Evan Almighty
June 29: Live Free or Die Hard, Ratatouille
July 4: Transformers
July 13: Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix
July 27: The Simpsons Movie
August 3: The Bourne Ultimatum
August 10: Rush Hour 3

And all these films are going to be digital.

This company's stock price is going to soar - again!

$147,300 in Your Pocket

In just 21 months, this company's share price has already skyrocketed 360.22% - from a share price low of $3.20 in August of 2004 to a high of $14.73 in May of this year.

Had you bought just 1000 shares of this company at a cost of only $3200 - you would've more than tripled, almost quadrupled, your money, and pocketed $14,730.

Had you bought 10,000 shares - for just $3.20 a share - right now you'd be smiling ear to ear with $147,300 in your pocket.

Your Profit Window: Buy this Company Now at Only $8 a Share

Currently the company's share price has backed off from its all-time high, and now hovers around $8 a share. And that's not bad news - not by any measure.

Just the opposite.

If you've been in the market for any length of time, you know that no stock moves straight up without occasional pause or pullback.

Indeed, occasional short-duration pullbacks are what you hope for in a stock. It offers you, as an investor, an excellent entry point to either add or establish a position.

A pullback is also "the pause that refreshes" - allowing "technical" strength to build up in a stock. In effect, it "primes the spring" that propels the stock to new and durable highs.

If you can afford the price of a movie ticket ... and before this company's share price shoots up again ... grab this little gem for odds-on fast-paced and stellar returns.

Why I'm So Confident this Company Will be Your Short Cut to Riches

Allow me to briefly introduce myself, and you'll quickly understand.

My name is Christian DeHaemer, and I'm the editor-in-chief of the Red Zone Profits trading system and investment advisory.

Over the years, Red Zone Profits has been profiled in the Los Angeles Times, Forbes Magazine, MarketWatch.com, StockDr.com, Money Matters, Personal Finance Radio, On the Money, and The Hollywood Reporter, to name but a few.

And the reason is simple: I pick winning stocks, and I make money for my member-subscribers.

I've beaten the market - the Dow, the NASDAQ, the S&P 500, every year for the last 10 years.

Who else do you know that can say that?

"I sold all my shares and made a total profit of $97,500. That was the biggest profit I ever made. Thank you very much Christian for the great work you have done." -- N.N. Red Zone Profits subscriber

Now I don't know how you feel ... but even the multi-millionaires I know won't turn up their noses to me putting an extra hundred thousand dollars in their pocket.

And that's exactly why I'm writing to you today: I want to make you rich. And if you're already rich ... I want to make you even richer.

Why Red Zone Profits Delivers Time and Time Again

Red Zone Profits is a novel and unique investment advisory service based upon a revolutionary, never-before-seen trading system.

Red Zone Profits combines technical and fundamental analysis in a new and uniquely predictive way to identify high-profit - very high-profit - opportunities in stocks and options that can provide safe and fast gains in a very short period of time.

Of course this all sounds very impressive ... but where's the proof?

Right here:

"In the month of January alone this year, I made $213,800 on three nano stocks. Christian, you guys are awesome!"

– R.C., Red Zone Profits subscriber

Since 2002 my Red Zone Profits System has returned gains of 8,170%. Yes, that's a truly amazing number. And I get that number by simply adding up the winners and subtracting the losers.

That's an average return of 5.45% every single day for the past four years - on more than 300 recommendations - which equals nearly two trading recommendations a week.

You don't trade twice a week? Nobody says you have to.

"I bought Cemex in October 2005 at $1.10 and sold them yesterday at $7.70 for a 600% profit. Thanks!"

– A.S., Red Zone Profits subscriber

But isn't it comforting to know, whichever way the market is moving - up, down or sideways - and no matter what hot economic, political or social event is influencing the market during the course of the week - you can rely on me and my team to offer you a money-making opportunity - almost twice a week!

Money Speaks Louder than Words

"Sold 3/5 of position (30 calls), for net gain of $27,682. Will close out remaining 20 calls this week for expected gain of approximately $22,000. Thanks for the heads up on this."

-- A.A., Red Zone Profits subscriber

You'll never have a worry or a concern. I'll always tell you exactly what to do and when to do it, so you won't have to second-guess the market.

Just follow my instructions and you could easily make substantial gains no matter what the stock market is doing.

"I bought MRKL at $.48 yesterday and today the stock is up to $1.14 or 138% in less than 36 hours. Just don't forget to tell me when to sell."

-- A.O., Red Zone Profits subscriber

Here, look at the following three charts very carefully:

This is the S&P 500 Year-to-Date:

This is the NASDAQ Year-to-Date:

This is the DOW Industrials Year-to-Date:

A picture may indeed be worth a thousand words - but let me translate these three charts very quickly.

Year-to-Date, the S&P 500 is up a paltry X.XX%

Year-to-Date, the NASDAQ is up a weak X.XX%

Year-to-Date, The DOW is up a pathetic X.XX%

Now, here's the Year-to-Date chart for Red Zone Profits:

Year-to-Date, completed trades, buys and sells recommended by Red Zone Profits are up a stunning XX.XX%

Yes, all winning and losing trades combined - we're up XX.X%

So I'll ask you just two questions:

1. Do you want to invest in the market by yourself?
2. And do you know of any other advisory and trading service that can deliver equal or better returns that we can?

My First Rule for Investment Success: Lose No Money

Like the Hippocratic Oath that medical doctors take which states, "Do No Harm," Red Zone Profits' oath states, "Lose No Money."

That's why we screen for companies that have strong fundamental values such as powerful insider buying and a solid balance sheet.

"...71% profit in 10 days. It works for me!!!" — R.S., Red Zone Profits subscriber

For example, if a company trades for less than cash on its balance sheet (indicating a potential bargain), and has a price-to-earnings growth number (PEG) below 1.0 (indicating that it may indeed be a bargain) - it could become a candidate for more intense review.

Of course, we also look at the charts. And what we look for specifically is one of the most useful technical analysis tools available to the modern-day trader.

I call it the "loaded gun"...

Little-Known Secrets of Technical Analysis

Most analysts fall short by tending to look at either technical OR fundamental analysis. But my team and I, we look at both.

"Another home run... whoever says you can't make money in this market must not be a Red Zoner...keep up the good work boys!!"
— S.M., Red Zone Profits subscriber

The "loaded gun" occurs when a stock exhibits a "bottoming pattern."

If you can find a "flatline" on a chart you'll see what I mean.

The "flatline" or the "bottoming pattern" represents buyers and sellers in equal numbers - where the buyers are buying on the dips, and the sellers are selling at the resistance points.

Insert a fictional but illustrative chart with annotations

And this flatline or bottoming pattern can go on and on (until the last seller cashes in his chips, and the only people left are the buyers.)

And so, every day that this bottoming pattern continues, with the chart moving sideways - "the spring" gets wound a little tighter ... like a loaded gun waiting for the hammer to fall and a spark to ignite - causing a powerful explosion that sends the stock flying upward.

What can cause the spark?

A news event, an earnings report, whatever, and then ...
KABOOM! The stock takes off!

"...Sold AMR this a.m. @ $6.95 for a $20K profit in 7 trading days. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you."
-- P.P., Red Zone Profits subscriber

The "loaded gun" of course happens all the time, but the trick is ... knowing when the last seller is ready to sell.

Otherwise, you could be holding on to a "dead stock" for years.

So you need something more - a sign that the stock is percolating and building pressure for a blastoff.

3 Signs to Tell You You're Looking at a Screaming Winner

The Trigger - a volume surge: This indicates a renewed interest in the company.

The Hammer - a "gap up": The stock gaps up as buyers overwhelm sellers. This is a precursor to a "bump-and-run rally."

The Spark - a break above the resistance point: All analysts watch resistance points and trend lines.

And if a stock breaks above a 200-day moving average, or a major resistance point, computer-based buy signals are activated all across Wall Street. And then a rally becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy.

But these factors are still not enough. And I'll tell you why...

You Want Downside Insurance

Another one of my rules is that the company must also have fundamental value in order to offer the most protection from downside risk. And I determine value by three factors:

Insider Buying: Strong insider buying is always a good indicator that those who know the most about a company are willing to put their money where their mouths are. You'll rarely go wrong when you buy alongside a company's CEO and CFO.

A Solid Balance Sheet: I like companies that trade for less than their assets. I really like stocks that trade for less than cash.

This means that the market capitalization of the stock is less than what the company has in the bank, plus short-term investments, minus debt (cash + liquid investments - debt < market cap = amazing buy.)

This is a no-brainer. If the market values a company at less than the total amount of its cash, then by definition it's undervalued.

A PEG Ratio Under 1: A PEG ratio stands for Price-to-Earnings over Growth (PE/G). It tells you not only the relative value of a company using the Price-to-Earnings ratio (P/E) but it also takes growth into account (a safer way of valuing a company.)

And when a stock meets all of the above six criteria ... it enters my "Red Zone." And only then does it become a recommendation.

And if you heed my recommendation and buy in a timely manner, Red Zone Profits recommendations will almost always go up in value.

"I bought SURE at $7.51 and sold it at $18.33 for a nice profit of 244%."

Start Investing like it's 1997 All Over Again!

And you can, because it's been more than 10 years since I've seen a market like the one we're in right now.

There are so many "loaded guns" currently out there.

We haven't had such a flatline market since the early 1990's when the Dow Jones Industrials (DJIA) traded in the 3,000's for four years. That's right, in February of 1995 the Dow was at 3,845.86...

The next year - BAM! - it was at 5,395.30.

Another massive gain, following a flatline market, also happened from 1954 - 1956, where a jump occurred from 292 to 470 after previously trading in the 200s since 1950.

"Thanks guys for the great trade -- we banked 90% on the QQQ trade -- sweet action."

And Now the Celebrated "Dow Theory" Has Signaled
the Start of the Next Big Bull Run!

If you're not familiar with the Dow Theory, real quickly it states that if the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) and the Dow Jones Transport Average (DJTA) both move in the same direction - hitting a significant high (or low) around the same time - you can positively declare the start of a bull (or bear) market.

Since the Dow Theory was first observed, 104 years ago, it's been an accurate predictor of stock direction - 92.6% of the time.

So guess what...?

At 4:00 p.m. (EST), on Mar. 16, 2006, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 11,233 - marking a 4½-year high.

At the very same time, on the very same day, the Dow Jones Transport Average hit 4,598 - another all-time high.

This confirmation signal means we have a 92.6% chance of being correct when we proclaim that we're in the first stage of the next great bull run!

I just can't tell you how excited I am about this. And you should be as well.

The last significant Dow signal occurred in 1997 right before the Dow Jones Industrial went from 5,800 to 12,000 - and the NASDAQ went from 1,500 to 5,200 - it was the greatest bull market in history...

Creating a New Millionaire Nearly Every Minute

And now that the Dow Theory has officially confirmed a new bull market, it's only going to get better very quickly...

Why?

According to Stock Trader's Almanac, most bull market rallies start in October with November, December and January being the best months. The total gain on the S&P 500 since 1950 has been 49.4% in October, 91.5% in November, 92.5% in December and 80% in January.

"I don't know how you knew it, but bravo! You are obviously a trader's trader. You're like liquid gold. 14% profit in one day. I just wanted to say thanks."

-- G.W., Red Zone Profits subscriber

So don't think you can wait to get started. He who hesitates - loses.

Speed is Crucial

The essence of our advisory and trading service is exact timing mixed with due diligence. We hold our picks six days to many years, until something changes ... either we hit our profit target, or our proprietary sell signal is triggered.

But rest assured, we'll tell you when to get in, and when to quickly get out (of course, if the going's good we'll tell you when to hang in there for even bigger possible gains.)

"In at $.50 and out at $1.10 for a very nice 120% in 3 weeks will work every time. Thanks!"

-- T.E., Red Zone Profits subscriber

Nevertheless ... most of our gains are made in short periods of time.

Why You'll Lose if You Wait

Right now, all of the big players on Wall Street are off in the Hamptons. In a few short weeks they'll all be back at work. They'll sit behind their mahogany desks wolfing down banana nut bagels and swilling Starbucks fat-free lattes.

And soon, they'll figure out the obvious. And they'll start buying.

You though, of course, want to get in there first. And the way to do this is to be fully invested as soon as possible, but no later than October 15, 2006.

"ADSX has done great. Thanks for the info. I got in at $4.77, and sold the stock at $7.50."

I'm going to give you two more Hot Investment Recommendations - outlined in two Special White Papers:

Hot Bonus Investment Recommendation #1:

The 20-Year Stock!

Buy this overlooked, undervalued, safe company and stick it in your retirement account. Then let it do its magic for the next 20 years ... and you could eventually have a million dollars to draw on.

This company buys hospitals, leases them back to the health-care companies long term.

It's got a forward price-to-earnings ratio (P/E) of 9. A profit margin of 63.17%. Quarterly revenue growth, Y-O-Y, of 81.8%, and is expected to continue paying an 8.45% dividend.

Tell me, are those numbers to drool over, or not? And have you ever heard of a hospital going out of business? No, of course not.

Health care is the fastest-growing segment of the U.S. economy - growing 18% per annum. And it's only going to grow even higher as the baby boomers continue to grow older.

When the market "discovers" this hot stock - watch out! What a ride that's going to be!

And it'll be yours ... when you subscribe...

"ASTM - bought at 92 cents and sold at $3.65."

Hot Bonus Investment Recommendation #2:

Profits as Hot as the Sun!

With gas prices tugging at America's wallets and crude soon heading back above $70 a barrel, there's a lot of interest in alternative energy.

Everything from ethanol to bio-diesel is being touted as a potential savior, and alternative energy stocks are soaring.

Well, I've found a company that's a shiny bright star in the solar energy field.

The industry as a whole boasts a compound annual growth rate north of 40%, and is expected to do just shy of $10 billion in sales this year.

We've played the solar technology field once before when we took 363% gains on Evergreen Solar options.

Now, we're looking at a great buying opportunity in another powerhouse solar stock that provides photovoltaic systems throughout China.

With China's massive population and relatively antiquated infrastructure, power demand is continually growing - and considering the sheer amount of fossil fuels that China burns, I expect solar power adoption to grow at an ever-accelerating rate.

And that growth rate is already evident in the company's financials.

Revenue grew 133.5% last quarter - easily beating its guidance. And its profits grew at a stellar 98%.

This is a value stock, growth stock, and emerging technology stock all rolled into one - and it's your next great stock buy!
